CUPE Local 3902 Unit 3 Job Posting

Posting Date: June 6, 2022

Course Number and Name: MUS3618H Studio Orchestration and Arranging

Course Description: The concept of orchestration with respect to recording is explored. While traditional orchestration and arranging methods largely apply for live performance, recording in the studio brings a new set of parameters to consider. This course explores what needs to be done in the studio to get the desired results in the control room (e.g., how to achieve the maximum result with the minimum resource). This course explores how recording in the studio can change the performance, and it examines such techniques as multi-track overdubbing and signal manipulation. Extensive analysis of recorded material and exercises in orchestration illustrate the possibilities. The students will work with video material and write to picture in order to explore how to create mood and ambience.

Class Schedule: Wednesdays 2-4pm
January - April 2023

Salary: $8,489.67

Estimated Course Enrollment: 15

TA support: No

Qualifications: Graduate degree in music composition or related field. Significant and recent experience composing music for television, film, and/or related media. Demonstrated track record of productivity in the television/film industry. Ability to work collaboratively with Sheridan College animation coordinator and students. Experience teaching music composition and technology at the university level.

Duties: Define course objectives and materials; provide clear guidelines on course requirements and regulations; teach classes as scheduled; administer and evaluate student assignments; prepare and submit final grade in accordance with policy. Maintain reasonable hours of student consultation outside scheduled class hours.
